PARANATURAL.—We are informed by telegram from Wellington, that the friends of senior Sir John Richardson presented him, on Friday night, with a watch and a chain, in recognition of his services in a late state of affairs, and as a mark of their esteem. Constable M. Garvey was also presented with an address with a similar object.

SMALL-POX HOSPITAL AT NEWCASTLE.—A deputation, consisting of Mr. J. G. Dibbs, M.L.A., Mr. J. M. Grieve, Mr. J. McKinnon, and Mr. A. Shannon, waited upon the Colonial Secretary at his office on Saturday morning, for the purpose of presenting a petition from the inhabitants of Newcastle, in relation to the small-pox hospital at Newcastle. The petition, which was signed by 1,000 names, requested that the site of the old gaol, in that city, should be set aside for the purpose of erecting a small-pox hospital, in the very centre of the town, and in such a position that the prevailing north-easterly wind would scatter the seeds of disease broadcast among the inhabitants. It was the desire of the petitioners that the site should be situated in a position that the prevailing north-easterly wind would scatter the seeds of disease broadcast among the inhabitants. It was the desire of the petitioners that the site should be situated in a position that the prevailing north-easterly wind would scatter the seeds of disease broadcast among the inhabitants.

APPRENTICES' INDEBTEDNESS.—A correspondent writes in reference to the Kild's communication in the "Herald" of the 10th inst., that the law does not empower magistrates to cancel indentures, unless it be for the protection of the apprentice as against the master, and as such, the indentures of the apprentices of the various trades in the colony, are not subject to the jurisdiction of the magistrates, and therefore, the proceeding of the Campbelltown Bench, however well intentioned, was contrary to law, and consequently, that the magistrates had no jurisdiction to cancel the indentures of the apprentices.

SURVEY IN WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—The Port of Australia of December 27 states that Mr. John Forrest has recently returned from his survey expedition to the east of Champion Bay, after an absence of four months. The parties have carried out successfully all the work which was assigned to them, and have made a complete map of the coast between Champion Bay and longitude 118°, the furthest station being in the Wedd Range, which is beyond the present expedition. The triangulation covers the coast from 118° 15' to 119° 15' and also all the coast between 119° 15' and 120° 15'.

INQUEST.—On Saturday Mr. Shiell, the City Coroner, held an inquest at the Sydney Arms, Castle-street, relative to the death of a little child named Arthur William Chabot, two and a half years of age, who was run over by a horse-drawn carriage on Friday afternoon. Francis Chabot, the father of the deceased, residing in Chippendale, stated that he last saw the child alive about a fortnight ago, at his home in Chippendale. The child was last seen by him on Friday afternoon, when he was run over by a horse-drawn carriage. The child was found by the coroner's men on Friday afternoon, and was taken to the Sydney Arms, where it was examined by the coroner. The child was found to have been run over by a horse-drawn carriage, and the coroner's men found the child's body in the street.

CRIMINAL STATISTICS.—During the year 1876 no fewer than 14,000 persons were brought before the magistrates at the Central Police Court, Sydney, by warrant or by summons, exclusive of civil cases. Of 11,000 persons charged with offences against the person, 1,000 were discharged for want of prosecution, 1,000 were discharged on the merits, and 4,000 were committed for trial. Of 1,000 persons charged with offences against property, 600 were discharged for want of prosecution, 1,000 were discharged on the merits, and 4,000 were committed for trial. Of 1,000 persons charged with offences against the person, 1,000 were discharged for want of prosecution, 1,000 were discharged on the merits, and 4,000 were committed for trial.

THE WARE OF THE GENERAL GRANT.—A New Zealand correspondent writes that the late General Grant, who was killed at the battle of Omdurman, has been found by the British forces in the Sudan. The General was found in a state of great distress, and was taken to the British camp, where he died. The British forces were surprised to find the General alive, and were glad to see him. The General was found in a state of great distress, and was taken to the British camp, where he died. The British forces were surprised to find the General alive, and were glad to see him.

REPORTED ATTEMPT AT ESCAPE FROM MOUNT GAMB.—It is currently reported (says the Western Mail) that a party of men, who were in the service of the Government, attempted to escape from Mount Gambier, but were captured by the British forces. The party was found in a state of great distress, and was taken to the British camp, where they died. The British forces were surprised to find the party alive, and were glad to see them.

PRESENTATION TO SIR CHARLES REED, M.P.—We learn from the Times that a number of ladies and gentlemen presented Sir Charles Reed, M.P., with a watch and a chain, in recognition of his services in a late state of affairs, and as a mark of their esteem. Constable M. Garvey was also presented with an address with a similar object.

FATAL RESULT OF AN ACCIDENT ON THE WESTERN RAILWAY.—The accident which occurred on the 23rd of last month to a railway guard named James Alick Miller, at Blackheath, has terminated fatally. The injured man died on Thursday. An inquest was initiated at that place in the afternoon, before the coroner (Mr. J. C. Stanger, J.P.) and a jury of twelve men. (says the Sydney Herald) the following was the evidence:—James Stewart deposed: I am assistant guard on the Western Railway line, and am at present acting in place of the deceased; the deceased Alick Miller was a guard on the Western line; on Saturday evening, the 23rd, I was in the train, and I was the last man to get out of the train at Blackheath, the train arrived about a quarter of 11 p.m.; the train had started and was leaving the station, when deceased, as usual, put his hand on the side of the engine, and was getting on when some one knocked against him; it was lamp-light at the time; he fell between the train and the platform; I distinctly saw a person come in contact with deceased, but the thing occurred so suddenly, I have no doubt that I could not see that the man pushed violently against the deceased; the man was standing close to the train, and I pushed him against him; when I saw deceased fall, I got on the engine, and gave the light to the engine, and after going about a quarter of a mile, the train stopped; I told the driver what had occurred, and brought the train back as quickly as possible; upon reaching the platform I saw deceased lying on the hand-rail of the platform, and several persons were near him; I asked him if he was hurt, and he replied, "Yes, I'm done for;" we got him into the break-van, and a medical man, who was in the train, went in with him; he was then taken to the hospital, and died on Sunday morning. The medical gentleman at Mount Victoria recommended that deceased should be brought on to Bathurst, and this was done; deceased was brought to this house; he had to be carried from the station to the house, and he was put in the room where he now lies; I saw him three times a week after that; sometimes he said he was getting on nicely, and at other times he said he felt very low; he made no allusion to the accident, and did not blame the person who "knocked" him; he was very quiet; the light I gave to the engine-driver was the red light, or danger signal; the other witnesses examined were Thomas Walsh, engine-driver of the deceased train; Edward Higgins, station-master at Blackheath; and Joseph Burton, locomotive inspector. Walsh and Higgins' evidence corroborated that given by Stewart, and the testimony as to the manner in which the accident occurred was further borne out by the statements of the deceased's wife, Mr. Higgins. The inquest was adjourned for additional evidence. Miller or as he was better known as "Alick," had been in the employ of the Government as railway-guard for some years, and had by his attention to duty and his good character, secured the confidence of constant travellers on the line on which he was stationed, and was highly respected, not only by his fellow-workmen, but also by those under whom he served for so many years. [It will be seen by our readers that the tragedy was concluded on Saturday, when a verdict of accidental death was returned.]

THE PLAGUE OF GRASSHOPPERS.—The report of a swarm of the above destructive insect is visible in the local journals; they have devoured the cabbage down to the stalk, on their track, and still further devastation is dreaded. Nor were they content with the cabbage, but they attacked the fruit-bearing trees and denuded them of the crop; potato foliage was swallowed, and not a blade of grass was left where they traversed. They are now steering their course in myriads around Warro, and the local journals are full of reports of their progress. This is a great evil, towards a really correct map of our colony; and, if the same progress continues, we may hope to see the whole of the settled portions of Western Australia covered by a scientific triangulation. Many of the settlers have been killed, and the Murchison and Sandford Rivers traversed. The weather had not been very hot, and water and feed not so scarce as might have been expected.

AN INTERESTING DISCOVERY.—A discovery of considerable interest has recently been made in the neighbourhood of Murrumbidgee. It appears (says the Sydney Herald) that a party of men, who were in the service of the Government, discovered a large quantity of gold in the neighbourhood of Murrumbidgee. The discovery was made by a party of men, who were in the service of the Government, and they were very glad to find the gold. The gold was found in a state of great distress, and was taken to the British camp, where it died. The British forces were surprised to find the gold alive, and were glad to see it.

ONE REASON GIVEN FOR THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION DID NOT SUCCEED.—Without desiring to violate official secrecy, we (says the Sydney Herald) may point out the cause which prevented the late Arctic expedition from being successful. The cause was the lack of proper preparation, and the lack of proper equipment. The expedition was not properly planned, and the equipment was not of the best quality. The expedition was not properly planned, and the equipment was not of the best quality. The expedition was not properly planned, and the equipment was not of the best quality.

COMMITTEE FOR ATTENDED SUICIDE.—The report that William McDonagh, who attempted to drown himself in a water-hole at New Lambton, was rescued by the police, and was taken to the hospital, where he died. The police were surprised to find McDonagh alive, and were glad to see him. McDonagh was found in a state of great distress, and was taken to the British camp, where he died. The British forces were surprised to find McDonagh alive, and were glad to see him.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET MATCH.

SECOND DAY.
The prospect of a victory for New South Wales—which the result of Friday's play brought into view—had the effect of stimulating a crowd to the Albert ground on Friday night. The Englishmen showed much form. Arrivals of five-hitting innings was the proper thing as the game stood, and he came off. It was nearly 6 o'clock when the innings closed, and it was determined to finish the match. New wickets were accordingly rolled and marked, and C. Bannerman and D. Gregory went straight for 4. Gregory then cut Lillywhite for 3, and 10 runs up to the hour. From the first ball of Shaw's next over, Gregory was given out, and 1-3-10 was announced. Gregory came in, and after Bannerman had scored a maiden from Lillywhite, put Shaw's foot point for 3. Gregory took a maiden from Lillywhite. The first of Lillywhite's sixth over Garrett lifted beautifully to square leg for 4, and the match was won by New South Wales.

The defeat of the Englishmen was unmistakable, and with the exception of their fielding on Saturday, seemed to be put on at every point of the game. As such as the Englishmen do not leave for New Zealand until Wednesday, and in view of their late disastrous defeat, a match has been arranged for eleven sides, to commence on the Albert Ground, this (Monday) morning, at 11.30, and to be continued to the end of the season. The Englishmen will play the New South Wales team, and will be followed by Powell and Garrett—two of the best players of the day. The match will be a very interesting one, and will be followed by Powell and Garrett—two of the best players of the day.

THE DISTRIBUTION OF TRACTS IN THE MELBOURNE HOSPITAL.
Our readers are aware that in consequence of some complaint of the hospital, the distribution of tracts was stopped, and the tracts were not distributed. The following correspondence, which appears in the Argus of Thursday, will explain the matter.
"Sir, I am sorry to hear that the distribution of tracts has been stopped. I have been in the habit of regularly visiting the Melbourne Hospital and distributing tracts to the most serious cases, irrespective of creed.
"I have so far refrained from introducing the subject of the distribution of tracts to the hospital, as I have been in the habit of regularly visiting the Melbourne Hospital and distributing tracts to the most serious cases, irrespective of creed.
"After visiting the hospital for several years without interruption, I was this week astonished on Friday week, when presenting a Roman Catholic with a small book, to be told that the subject of the distribution of tracts was not to be introduced. I was very much surprised, and I am sorry to hear that the distribution of tracts has been stopped. I have been in the habit of regularly visiting the Melbourne Hospital and distributing tracts to the most serious cases, irrespective of creed."
